

Courses for Visiting Students at Pembroke

The emphasis in Oxford is to study one subject or a specific combination of subjects in depth. This may differ from your current University, which tend to allow greater flexibility in choice from a broad range of courses. Pembroke offers the courses listed below to both undergraduates and visiting students. You are expected to select one course from the list. An outline of each course is available in the undergraduate prospectus on the Oxford university web site: <https://www.ox.ac.uk/admissions/undergraduate/courses/course-listing>

Biochemistry
Biological Sciences
Chemistry
Computer Science
Economics and Management
Economics
English Language and Literature
English and Modern Languages (French, German, Italian)
European and Middle Eastern Languages (Arabic and French, German or Italian)
History
History and Economics
History and English
History and Modern Languages (French, German, Italian)
History and Politics
Law (Jurisprudence)
Mathematics
Mathematics and Philosophy
Mathematics and Computer Science
Modern Languages (French, German, Italian)
Music
Oriental Studies (Arabic, Islamic Studies, Japanese, Chinese)
Philosophy
Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (or any combination thereof)
Philosophy and Modern Languages (French, German or Italian)
Philosophy and Theology
Physics
Physics and Philosophy
Politics
Psychology (Experimental)
Psychology and Philosophy
Theology and Religion
Theology and Oriental Studies

Within the College you will be looked after by the Tutors in the subject you have chosen, who will provide teaching or arrange teaching with specialists in other fields as appropriate.